Women's Working Hours in Japan

Graph 1
Weekly working time in Japan
(In percent of total workers ; In 2020)

Ministry of Internal Affairs and Communications

Graph 2
Working time gap between men and women
(In hours ; Weekly average)

Source: International Labour Organization

The number of women working in Japan is increasing. In 1990, 52% of all women were working. This increased to 78% in 2020. Graph I shows that 14% of women worked 1-14 hours a week, and 26% of women worked 15-29 hours a week. For full-time work, 32% of women worked 40-48 hours a week, while 46% of men worked 40-48 hours a week. This shows that more women work part-time than men. Women who have part-time jobs said "housework" was the reason they could not work full-time, and many women leave full-time jobs when they have a baby. The number of mothers working part-time increased from 19% before having a child, to 42% after having a child. It seems that having a baby is the reason many women work part-time. A woman who works full-time in Tokyo said, "I imagine I could work anywhere if I didn't have a baby."
